📄 PROFILE

Master's student in International Relations at the École Nationale Supérieure des Sciences Politiques (ENSSP), with a multidisciplinary background and interests spanning geopolitics, international security, strategic affairs, emerging technologies, and the global energy transition. My research focuses on the intersection of geopolitical dynamics, technological transformation, and evolving energy systems, particularly their implications for strategic competition, infrastructure resilience, and global governance. I am seeking an internship where I can apply my research and analytical skills, contribute to policy-oriented projects, and gain practical experience in an internationally oriented professional environment.
